How funding works

9 months to 3 years funding

Funded 15 hours a week for 38 weeks is available to eligible working parents the term after their child turns 9 months. Since we are open 51 weeks a year, the funding is stretched and this equates up to 11.2 free hours a week.

Funded 30 hours a week (coming September 2025) for 38 weeks is available to eligible working parents the term after their child turns 9 months. Since we are open 51 weeks a year, the funding is stretched, and this equates to 22.4 free hours a week.

Funded hours are limited to 3 hours per half day and 6 hours per full day. The total owed is equivalent to the unfunded hours only - funded hours are entirely free.

Over 3 years funding (incidental charge of £2 per funded hour only)

The Universal 15 hours, 38 weeks funding is currently available to everyone the term after their child turns 3. Since we are open 51 weeks a year, the funding is stretched and this equates up to 11.2 free hours a week.

The Extended 30 hours, 38-week funding is available for eligible working parents from the first term of enrolment. Since we are open 51 weeks a year, the funding is stretched and this equates to 22.4 free hours a week.

Funded hours are limited to 3 hours per half day and 6 hours per full day. The total owed is equivalent to the unfunded hours only - funded hours are entirely free - and an incidental charge of £2 per funded hour only. This is to contribute towards the cost of various incidentals that the funding doesn't cover, and, most notably, extended curriculum and other extracurricular activities for older children.

Eligibility criteria can be checked on the <https://www.childcarechoices.gov.uk/> website.
